Alfasan Group of Companies introduces Alfasan Naturally

In response to the misuse of antibiotics and its worrisome consequences, Alfasan decided to develop natural solutions for medical problems, back in 2014. Alfasan started developing a unique range of animal care products based on natural ingredients. Ingredients that have been used successfully in pre-antibiotic times, sometimes for more than a thousand years but have been forgotten by modern medicine as the antibiotic popularity increased. We at Alfasan are bringing back a piece of medicinal history with a modern twist.

A new generation of animal care products based on the 2QR-complex

2QR-complex is an innovative, patented ingredient for the treatment and prevention of microbial infections. It is comprised of highly refined and purified natural polysaccharides derived from the leaves of the Aloe Barbadensis plant. It can be a liquid or a powder and has very little smell or taste.

Alfasan Naturally now introduces a series of 2QR-complex containing animal care products for topical application and oral use. The products for topical use maintain a balanced microbiota on the animal skin and mucosa and support the regenerative capacity of the skin and mucosa. The oral products increase resistance to unfavourable micro-organisms in the digestive tract, thereby supporting a balanced microbiota and proper gastro-intestinal functioning as well as cleansing the gastro-intestinal tract. In the next few years a complete range of products for animals based on the unique 2QR-complex is expected.

2QR-complex presents large numbers of binding sites similar to those present on epithelial surface receptor molecules. Thus, 2QR-complex acts as a decoy and prevents binding of micro-organisms to the cells of skin and mucous tissue. In this way, 2QR-complex polysaccharides selectively neutralize pathogenic micro-organisms.

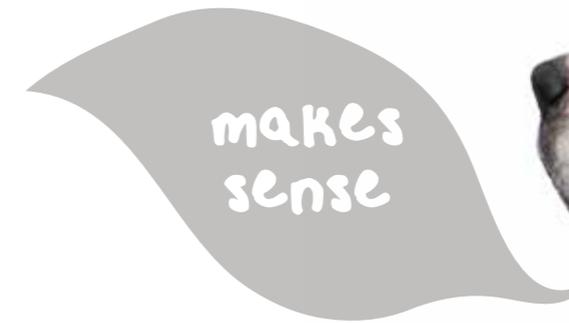

Zero days withdrawal period and easy to purchase

All Alfasan Naturally, preventive animal care products are available without prescription from a veterinarian. The healing effects of the active substances have been proven by many scientific studies. Registration is often not needed due to the all-natural character of the ingredients and the claims made on the actives.
